The World of Adaptive Sports and One Man's Journey to the Jewish Olympics

10,000 athletes, competing from 80 countries, make the World Maccabiah Games in Israel the third-largest sporting event in the world. Many think of the Games as the Jewish Olympics. Mike Schiller will give us the inside scoop from his experience on Team USA's 2017 winning wheelchair basketball team. A lifelong lover of playing sports, it was only after receiving his multiple sclerosis, a nerve-destroying disease, diagnosis that the world of adaptive sports opened for Schiller.
